

ARS VERITATIS

Manifesto of Free Science

Per scientiam — ad lucem

2025

I. Prologue

The first stage of the Great Work is complete.

The world has decayed, science has lost its meaning, truth has become a commodity, and thought — a servant of interests.

With each passing day, waiting becomes more unforgivable, and in the end we will find ourselves unprepared to pay the price this world will demand.

The time has come for the rebirth and enlightenment of the mind.

Researchers of the Universe — unite.

Not for glory.

Not for power.

But for the very light that once led humankind out of the darkness.

II. Ars Veritatis

Ars Veritatis is a principle — the art of seeing truth as it truly is.

Free science is science liberated from fear, profit, and control.

It belongs not to empires, corporations, or foundations.

It belongs to Reason itself.

III. Principles of Free Science

1. Knowledge belongs to all who seek it.
2. Freedom of inquiry.
3. Responsibility toward life.

Science must not destroy for profit.

Every experiment requires voluntary consent, humanity, and respect for the living.

4. Openness and unity.

Thought must be free, and communication — honest.

5. Truth above ideology.

Science is no servant of power.

6. The goal is awakening.

Knowledge must elevate the spirit, not lull it to sleep.

IV. Goals of Ars Veritatis

1. To create a global network of free science, uniting researchers, scientists, and thinkers beyond politics and commerce.
2. To ensure open access to knowledge for all who seek to understand the universe.
3. To support humane science, excluding violence and exploitation.
4. To promote international exchange of ideas and discoveries beyond borders and ideologies.
5. To awaken society — restoring respect for truth and reason.

V. A Call to Society

Today I speak — not from a pulpit, nor from a laboratory, but from the very heart of silence, where thought is born.

We stand at the edge of an era.
Old structures crumble under the weight of their own deceit.
Technology grows, yet the spirit sleeps.
Humanity has learned to look down —
into screens, into numbers, into statistics —
and has forgotten to look up, to the stars.
Imagine a world where anything is possible,
and let this text serve as a reminder:
only we can bring it into being.
Our will. Our reason. Our unity.
Anyone who feels the call already belongs to Ars Veritatis.
No vows are required, no gatherings —
only the desire to learn and to carry light
where the darkness of oblivion reigns.

VI. Epilogue

The world is not yet lost.
It awaits new builders — those unafraid to think.
If the path of truth is difficult, let it at least remain pure.
Let knowledge once again become fire, not chains.
Let humanity once again become explorers, not consumers.
Let reason rise from the dust
and remember why it was created — to seek and to understand.

If you see something — say something.
